

Service-Learning/Civic Engagement and Homeland Security/Domestic Preparedness Workshop

What is the linkage between service-learning, civic engagement, and leading others to respond appropriately during a crisis? How do institutions of higher learning, government entities, and community-based organizations partner to enable a community to prepare for and respond to emergencies, both natural and man-made?

These questions and more will be answered by a team of nationally recognized trainers who will lead you through a day of dialogue and active participation. This is an opportunity to learn what some community colleges are doing to meet homeland security and domestic preparedness needs by using service-learning and civic engagement, as well as, leveraging existing resources.

When: September 10, 2004

Where: Gulf Coast Community College
5230 West U.S. Hwy 98
Panama City, Florida
Student Union East Conference Center

Time: 8:30 am - 3:00 pm
Lunch will be provided

Registration Deadline: September 3, 2004

For more information contact:
Debbie Mikolajczyk, Coordinator
Entrepreneurial & Leadership Development
850.913.3297(phone)
850.747.3258 (fax)
dmikolajczyk@gulfcoast.edu

Presenters: Virginia York, Professor, Economics and History, Gulf Coast Community College, FL
Larry Thacker, Director, Fire Science and Emergency Medical Technology, Mesa Community College, AZ
Gary Thompson, Chairperson, Law & Criminal Justice Department, Monroe Community College, NY

This training is made available through funding from the Corporation for National and Community Service, Learn and Serve America Higher Education

Please mail form and check by September 3, 2004 to: Gulf Coast Community College, ATTN: Cashier's Office
5230 West U.S. Hwy 98
Panama City, FL 32401

Cost: $30.00 per person
Check payable to: Gulf Coast Community College

Registration Form

Name (please type or print) _____ Title _____

Institution/Organization _____

Address _____

City, State, Zip _____ Phone _____

Fax _____ e-Mail Address _____